

THE LEGACY OF 1964

RACE & GENDER INEQUITY FIFTY YEARS LATER

APRIL 4, 2014

8:45 – 9:00

Welcome and Introduction

Meredith Render, Associate Professor of Law The University of Alabama School of Law

David Harris

Editor-in-Chief, Alabama Civil Rights & Civil Liberties Law Review

9:00 – 10:00

Session I

“The Civil Rights Act at 50: An Examination of Title VII’s Ebb and Flow”

Professor Trina Jones

Duke University School of Law

Introduction: Bonnie Sowell, The University of Alabama School of Law

10:00- 10:15

Break

10:15-11:15

Session II

“The Civil Rights Act of 1964 and the Law of Property”

Professor Al Brophy

University of North Carolina School of Law

Introduction: Chris Richard, The University of Alabama School of Law

11:15-12:15

Session III

“Democracy and Coercion: Race and the Neo-Conservative Backlash”

Professor Anthony Cook

Georgetown University Law Center

Introduction: Todd Pancieria, The University of Alabama School of Law

- 12:15-1:45 Session IV - Lunch and Keynote Speaker
“Should Black Women Lean in? What Sheryl Sandberg Doesn’t Understand”
Professor Dorothy Brown
Emory University School of Law
- Introduction: Tiffany Ray, The University of Alabama School of Law
- 1:45-2:00 Break
- 2:00-3:00 Session V
“Organizational Complexity and the Quest for Civil Rights”
Gregory Parks
Wake Forest University School of Law
- Introduction: Eric Coleman, The University of Alabama School of Law
- 3:00-3:15 Break
- 3:15 -4:15 Session VI
“Language Rights under the Civil Rights Act of 1964: The Case for Juror Language Accommodation”
Jasmine Rose Gonzoles
University of Pittsburgh School of Law
- Introduction: Katherine Reeves, The University of Alabama School of Law
- 4:15-5:00 Reception (Co-sponsored by Public Interest Institute)